Jul 16, 2018 Hello, I just recently replaced the harddrive on my dell inspiron 1525 and I running Windows XP Professional as my operating system! I tried using my HDMI cord with my LCD tv and theres no signal at all.. ' The problem is getting an actual display on the external display device How can I get my hdmi port to actually send the signal to my TV or other display? I have spent hours on google and nothing has helped.

Discussion in 'Mountain Lion Laptop Support' started by zb370, Aug 26, 2012 Panasonic hdc tm60.. I have tried having both devices powered off with the cable attached and then restarting them, etc.. The Samsung TV that I want the output to work on will display a 'searching for signal' message when I attach the hdmi cable, but after a few seconds will display 'no signal.. I have tried both Windows 7 and Ubuntu, and when I connect the hdmi cable to my TV, the laptop instantly finds a second display device, and I can even move my mouse cursor off the screen of my laptop where the 'extended display' should be displayed on the TV (clone desktop, only showing the hdmi display, using FN+F8, etc.. Yes, I have made sure that the TV/external monitors are set on the proper hdmi source. b0d43de27c Download Dropbox App On Mac
